SUMMARY

Synopsis of Bill

House Joint Memorial 47 requests the New Mexico Livestock Board to help retain small businesses in communities throughout New Mexico and preserve traditional practices of Native American and Hispanic communities by taking into consideration cultural and traditional practices in adopting regulations for meat inspection and slaughterhouses.

There is no appropriation attached to this legislation.

SIGNIFICANT ISSUES:

The memorial urges the New Mexico Livestock Board to begin a dialogue with leaders of traditional Native American and Hispanic communities to discuss the potential for working together to develop better communication and to provide better understanding of the needs of both the traditional community leaders and the regulators pertaining to the butchering or slaughter of animals in traditional ways for feasts, ceremonies and community gatherings.

It resolves that the New Mexico Livestock Board and the proprietors of small slaughterhouses and butchering operations that provide meat and slaughtered animals for ceremonies, Hispanic community matanzas and other traditional community gatherings and celebrations work together to sustain these small businesses to promote the traditions and cultures of New Mexico.

It additionally resolves that the New Mexico Livestock Board work with Native American traditional spiritual leaders and proprietors of operations that butcher or slaughter animals for consumption at feasts, ceremonies, Hispanic community matanzas and other traditional gatherings to address regulatory restrictions of the United States department of agriculture that are impeding the operation of these small businesses and slowly destroying the underlying traditions of the cultures of New Mexico.

The memorial concludes that the New Mexico Livestock Board report on its progress in developing better communication and establishing an ongoing dialogue to the appropriate legislative interim committee no later than September 1, 2007; and that copies of this memorial be transmitted to the governor, the president of the Navajo Nation, the chair of the all Indian pueblo council and the New Mexico Livestock Board.
